

Proclamation

From November 20 through 22, 2006, Chaminade University of Honolulu will host the 23rd annual EA SPORTS Maui Invitational Basketball Tournament at Maui's Lahaina Civic Center.

This pre-eminent early-season college basketball tournament will continue a tradition that has featured many of the nation's finest men's teams representing 78 schools, 20 conferences and 34 states.

The tournament is a tremendous source of pride and excitement for the citizens of our Aloha State. In addition to tournament host, Chaminade University of Honolulu, this year's roster includes teams from DePaul, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Memphis, Oklahoma, Purdue and UCLA.

All 12 games of the 2006 EA SPORTS Maui Invitational will be televised by the ESPN networks, providing viewers worldwide the experience and thrill of collegiate basketball competition broadcast live from Maui.

For those who are visiting, we hope you will enjoy the beauty of our islands and the famous aloha spirit of our people.

THEREFORE, I, LINDA LINGLE, Governor of the State of Hawai'i, and I, JAMES R. "DUKE" AIONA, JR., Lieutenant Governor, do hereby proclaim November 20, 2006, as in the Aloha State, and encourage all basketball fans to watch the 23rd annual tournament in person or on television.

DONE at the State Capitol, in the Executive Chambers, Honolulu, State of Hawai'i, this twenty-second day of September 2006.

Linda Lingle
Governor, State of Hawai'i

James R. "Duke" Aiona, Jr.
